Legitimacy of IP Protection for Software

- Software licenses typically prevent you from making copies of software to sell or give away
 - Software licenses are legal agreements
 - Not discussing morality of breaking the law
- Discussing whether society should give intellectual property protection to software

What do you think?

- Break into groups; discuss and debate.

Intellectual Property

“The producers of software should have the right to prevent others from copying the software they produce.”

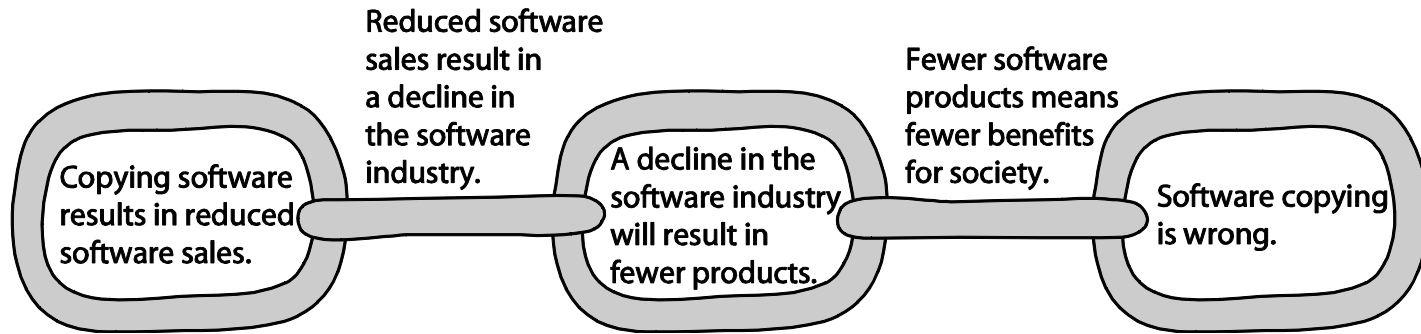

Rights-based Analysis

- “Just deserts” argument
 - Programming is hard work that only a few can do
 - Programmers should be rewarded for their labor
 - Mixing my labor with something implies ownership
- Criticism of “just deserts” argument
 - Why does labor imply ownership?
 - Mixing my labor with something means I lose my labor?
 - Pour a can of tomato juice into the ocean: I don’t own the ocean.
 - A society in which all labor went to common good could be just
 - Intellectual property not like physical property
 - I cut logs: I own the logs
 - I write a book: I get to restrict other people from copying the book
- What do you think about this argument?

Utilitarian Analysis

- Argument against copying
 - Copying software reduces software purchases...
 - Leading to less income for software makers...
 - Leading to lower production of new software...
 - Leading to fewer benefits to society

- Each of these claims can be debated
 - Not all who get free copies can afford to buy software
 - Open-source movement demonstrates many people are willing to donate their software-writing skills
 - Hardware industry wants to stimulate software industry
 - Difficult to quantify how much society would be harmed if certain software packages weren't released
- What do you think about this argument?
